European Human Behaviour & Evolution Conferences

The European Human Behaviour and Evolution (EHBE) Conferences, begun in 2006, aim to provide an interdisciplinary European forum for discussing evolutionary research applied to the behavioural sciences, broadly interpreted. We are committed to organising genuinely interdisciplinary conferences that bring together all researchers applying evolutionary theory to the behavioural sciences, including not only the main branches of human behavioural ecology, evolutionary psychology and cultural evolution, but also disciplines such as reproductive ecology, evolutionary archaeology, sociology and medicine, etc.

The 2008 EHBE Conference will be held at Montpellier University in France, 2-4th April. Information on how to submit papers for this meeting will be announced via our website: www.ehbes.com

Note that while the EHBE conferences are located in Europe, we encourage submissions from all regions.

European Human Behaviour & Evolution Conferences

We are not (yet) a formally constituted society, but the organisers of the 2007 conference, along with Kevin Laland, form a steering committee to oversee the organisation of future meetings. For details on our 2007 meeting, held earlier this year at the London School of Economics, see below. Further information can be downloaded from our website: www.ehbes.com

EHBE 2007 Conference

EHBE 2007 was a 3 day conference held in March at the London School of Economics and was organised by Rebecca Sear (LSE), Tom Dickins (UEL) & David Lawson (UCL). 31 papers and 31 posters were presented to 130 delegates, including plenaries by Professor Ruth Mace (University College London), Dr Daniel Nettle (Newcastle University) & Professor Kevin Laland (University of St Andrews). A Keynote Speech was presented by Professor Robin Dunbar (University of Liverpool). Further details on all the presentations made at EHBE 2007, along with conference photos, can be downloaded from our website.

A selection of papers presented at the conference will be published in a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of Cultural & Evolutionary Psychology.
